EAGLES BALL TEAM DEFEATS FLORISTS

The Daly City Eagles' baseball team defeated the San Francisco Florists on Sunday on the Jefferson Union high school diamond, 6 to 2. The local boys were off to a three run rally in the first inning, bunching four clean hits to sew up the game for Pitcher Gus Ford, who is pitching high class ball for the local team.

Each week the Eagle team has been showing new faces in the lineup, but if the team continues to play the same high class ball put on display Sunday, they will be ready to meet any of the leading Class A clubs.

Next Sunday the Eagles will play at Jefferson High at 2 P. M. The manager is trying to book a game with one of the Fleet teams.

THE HAPPY RAMBLERS CLUB

The meeting of the Happy Ramblers Club was held at Mr. Rudolph's home on April 26, sixteen members being present.

President Willie Stevens called the meeting to order, and the Happy Ramblers went over their by-laws and rules. A picnic was discussed for the coming Sunday, to be held at Tunitas Beach, and new games were suggested. H. Rudolph was warned not to have any party Saturday night, as the members are to meet at 6 o'clock Sunday morning, with lots of pep. O. K. Ramblers.

On the picnic. After the meeting a Dutch supper was served, along with near beer. The members enjoyed themselves playing cards, pool and and games. They adjourned at 12 o'clock.

On Wednesday, April 6, a meeting of the Happy Ramblers Club was held at the home of Miss Cassie Wackley, in Daly City. New officers were selected as follows: Wilbe Stevens, president; Dot Sjolseth, secretary-treasurer; Ruth Hamberg, Geo. Oppenshaw and Seth Hamberg, commissary; Walter Snelling, custodian of the "kitty"; and H. Rudy, chorus leader. After the election a dainty repast was enjoyed.

On Sunday, April 10, the Happy Ramblers had their first picnic at Congress Springs. The members and guests numbered thirty-one. The day was spent in playing baseball, singing and dancing, and at 2 o'clock a fine spaghetti feed was served. The Ramblers had a fine picnic to start the season.

JUVENILES RACE APRIL THIRTIETH

With the encouragement of the breeding of the blood horse ever uppermost as one of its chief purposes, the Pacific Coast Breeders Association is making every effort to attract all the fleetest babies of the West for the first running of the Tanforan Juvenile Championship Stakes on Saturday, April thirtieth. Two year olds are offered in the San Mateo Handicap and the Breeders Handicap.

The "Championship" will be at five furlongs, a distance that makes a true test of the speed and stamina of the contestants. In a race at five furlongs the post positions are not as important factors as in events at shorter distances. The weights are equal, too, making the struggle a real championship affair.

In no distant time it is likely the Juvenile will be changed to a produce stakes, with the naming of the dams of the possible starters to come two years prior to the running, as is done in the Belmont Futurity and other famous events. Such conditions are conducive to the rearing of the highest type of thoroughbred.

California, Nevada, Washington, and other Western states are breeding a sturdy kind of individual, which is to be expected, considering the climatic conditions, the soil, the water, the rich feed, and in most the nurseries, the proximity of the Pacific Ocean. It has been found in every part of the world, notably in Ireland and the Argentine, that there is nothing like briny breezes from the sea for building up the requisite fundamen in the blood horse.

The dominant strains of modern times, such as those of Ben Brush, Domino, Sunstar and Fair Play, are represented by the stallions standing at various farms out this way and as to the matrons, one would have to go far to find better ones than daughters of War Cry, Cunard, Atheling II, Bistouri, High Time, Marta Santa, and other well known broodmare sires.

Two year olds bring more sentiment to the races than the older performers and the winning of a stakes for the youngsters is the best kind of boost for the particular blood flowing in the veins of the victorious baby.

Towne, and George Van Gorden are doing yeoman service in "showing" the world what the West can do in the breeding and rearing of high class gallopers.

HOLY COMMUNION IN GRACE CHURCH

Grace Presbyterian church will observe Holy Communion on Sunday forenoon at the 11 o'clock service.

Rev. John R. Stevenson will preach a sermon on "How to Get the Best of Your Troubles." In the evening at 7:45, in a setting of the old Gospel hymns, the pastor will preach on "Every one was like the Child of a King."

In the prayer meeting on Wednesday evening at 7:45 a study of the Book of Acts will be continued.

CHURCH BENEFIT CONCERT TO BE HELD FRIDAY, MAY 6

T. Eugene Goudey and advanced piano and vocal pupils with assisting artists will give a concert at the Methodist church, Daly City, Friday evening, May 6, at 7:45 o'clock. Mr Goudey has arranged an exceptionally fine program of piano, vocal, and cornet solos, and literary selections by some of the best known professional people of San Francisco, who are to appear at this concert. It would be unfair to mention one artist more than another, since all are deserving of special mention and are well known to the concert, radio and theatre-going public. Tickets and door admission will be priced at only 25 cents. Wide-spread interest is being shown in this concert not alone by Daly City and San Francisco, but by other bay cities. A full house is already assured.

Local Aerie No. 1848 of the Fraternal Order of Eagles have set aside the night of Thursday, May 12, for the observance of Mothers' Day. This occasion will be open to the public. President T. H. Connolly extends a welcome to all citizens to participate in the Eagles Mothers' day ceremonies. An appropriate program of musical numbers and speakers has been prepared. A complete program will be announced at a later date.

The monthly social of the Royal Neighbors was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Agnes Wood, on Mission Circle. A very delightful evening was spent in playing cards, after which dainty refreshments were served to the following: Mesdames M. Smith, K. Brown, I. Parke, E. Twisten, J. Hedvall, M. Rampe, D. Burdick, C. Scott, A. Wood, B. Merritt, M. Orr, A. Smith, L. Losier, L. Greene, A. Romer, L. Nelson and Maren Nelson.

A lot of time is wasted in trying to think up ways to save it.

SPEAKERS ARRAYED FOR SAFETY SESSION

Every phase of the traffic accident problem in California will be analyzed at the annual convention of the California Committee on Public Safety in Santa Cruz, May 5 to 7, with the Municipal Traffic League of California participating. The gathering will seek an answer to the question, "What can be done to reduce traffic accidents?"

Presiding over the various sessions will be Senator Arthur H. Breed, of Oakland, chairman of the Committee on Public Safety and a director of the California State Automobile Association; Charles F. Todd, president of the Traffic League; E. B. Lefferts, chairman of the executive committee of the Committee on Public Safety; C. O. Dunbar, vice-president of the Traffic League; Fred R. Howe, of Santa Cruz, director of the Automobile Association; and C. C. Cottrell, secretary of the Committee on Public Safety and manager of the public safety department of the Automobile Association.

Governor James Rolph has been invited to address the convention. The address of welcome will be delivered by Mayor F. W. Swanton, of Santa Cruz. Among the speakers will be C. H. Purcell, State Highway Engineer; E. Raymond Cato, chief of the California Highway Patrol; Percy E. Towne, chairman of the Automobile Association public safety committee; Mrs. Lawrence Cullen, state safety chairman, Parent-Teachers Association; Dr. B. W. Black, health officer, Alameda county; P. H. Ducker, Automotive Council of Los Angeles; Captain Charles Goff, traffic bureau, San Francisco; Gordon Whitnall, secretary California League of Municipalities; Luke L. Gallup, assistant superintendent of schools, Los Angeles; Russell Bevans, chief of the division of registration, Department of Motor Vehicles; Judge Alfred Fritz, Municipal Court, San Francisco; J. Allen Davis, associate counsel, Automobile Club of Southern California; John D. Fraser, chief of police, Glendale; Robert L. Burns, Los Angeles City Council; former Mayor M. A. Harris of Atherton, and others.

Among the subjects to be discussed are "Detection and Elimination of the Unfit Operator;" "Building Safety Into Highways;" "Education of Operators;" "Enforcement on Highways;" "Enforcement Within Cities;" "Appropriate Penalties for Traffic Offenses;" "Elimination of Tag Fixing;" "The Problem of the Drunken Driver;" "Safety Education in Schools;" "City Planning for Safety;" "Scope of Motor Vehicle Legislation;" "Careful Selection of Commercial Operators;" "The Design and Maintenance of the Motor Vehicle;" and "Governmental Authority to Eliminate the Unfit Operator."

The attention of the convention has been directed to the traffic accident problem by the steadily increasing toll of deaths and injuries in the state. In 1931 there were 2,591 deaths, or 216 per month, an increase of 8.7 per cent over the preceding year. The number of injured was 48,077 last year, an increase of 16.6 per cent.

"THE COPPERHEAD" COMING TO GEARY THEATRE, MAY 2

Ian Keith is returning to San Francisco a fell fabled star, as Edward J. Hogarty will present this fine player in Augustus Thomas' dramatic triumph, "The Copperhead," for a two weeks engagement at the Geary Theatre, commencing Monday evening, May 2.

Mr. Keith, who has a great following in the bay district through his many fine portrayals, is of course best identified for his recent role of Baron von Gaigern in "Grand Hotel," and for his moving and finely shaded interpretation of Lord Essex in support of Pauline Frederick in "Elizabeth the Queen."

In returning to the Geary as a star, Mr. Keith will play an entirely different sort of role from those in which he won such esteem. Instead of enacting a great lover, he will play the abused and misunderstood old Illinois farmer who was the hero of Mr. Thomas' great play.

Reputed by his friends of the North for being a Southern sympathizer, which to them meant a traitor and spy, this remarkable character goes through the play the abused and discredited victim of circumstances until in a smashing last act finish it is revealed that all along he has been a Northern man working secretly under direct orders from President Abraham Lincoln.

It is one of Keith's greatest triumphs, and everywhere he has played the role he has scored tremendously. The star himself is staging the production, while his manager, Mr. Hogarty, has given him a splendid supporting cast which includes Leon Waycoff, Alma Chester, Maude Fealy, Barrie O'Daniels, Allan Connors, William Jeffries, John Merkyl, Jack Thomas and Bess Stafford.

A ring stolen by Miss Alice Wilson was found in her mouth when she was arrested in St. Louis.

Five-year-old Elmer Forrest, of Winnetka, Ill., swallowed seven coins without any ill effects.

Franz Groelich, of Berlin, paid a fine of $100 for calling a woman he did not know "sweetheart."

"Cold!"

Then she changed to Automatic HOT water

THE FAUCET says HOT. Yet the water runs COLD.

Why is this? Because the family can't afford an Automatic Gas Water Heater? Hardly that. They wait for water to heat because they never realize that to do without an Automatic is a waste of time, energy, and money. But architects and builders know about this. They are specifying Automatics for all modern homes.

Bargain on Automatics

You can buy an Automatic Gas Water Heater now for 50% less than you could in 1917. Yet the new, improved Automatics are better built than ever. Terms are easier—as low as $4.85 down and $3.85 a month. A liberal trade-in allowance is being made for your old non-automatic water heater or water-back.

Instant HOT water for shaving

Saves Your Time and Energy

With plenty of hot water, dirt dissolves from 2 to 20 times faster. That saves energy with the clothes and dishes. It also saves time. Studies have been made which show that an Automatic Gas Water Heater saves from 4 to 6 hours each week.

Install an Automatic Gas Water Heater. It heats the water, stores it in its big tank, and shuts itself off. No gas is wasted keeping the water hot because the boiler is insulated.

See the new Automatics. When you select one you are not buying a luxury but making an investment in one of the most important necessities for happy healthful home life. Then, too, the word HOT on your faucets will mean hot any time of the day or night when you have an Automatic Water Heater.

*According to our gas rates, Automatic Water Heating with Natural Gas saves the average consumer 40%.

CALIFORNIA NEWS REVIEW

For the sixteenth time Charles L. Neumiller of Stockton was elected president of the State Board of Prison Directors recently.

Rice planting by airplane has started at Willows and is reported rapidly gaining in favor in the rice belt, with 5000 acres already contracted for.

Another bid to "wonder" baby fame is made by Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Browning of Porterville. Their 19-months-old Billy cut his first teeth at the age of 8½ months and had a full set of teeth at 17 months, thus forcing to the background another baby's claim to a full set of teeth at three years.

Some counties of the state, it is said, will discontinue the holding of fairs, but it isn't likely that Tulare county will follow their example. The directors are discussing plans for the 1932 fair, one of these being the shifting of 4-H activities usually held in August to fair time.

With the object of developing love of the daring sports of the old wild west in the younger generation, the Livermore Rodeo Association has invited all children of grammar school age to be guests at the big cowboy show Saturday, May 14, on which evening a children's parade will be held.

Tulare's new oleo ordinance has gone into effect and hereafter dealers in oleomargarine or any other butter substitute will have to pay a license fee of $200 a year in advance and display such license in a conspicuous place. This is declared to be the first ordinance of the kind in Tulare county.

Extension of the Red Cross home service policy to include war veterans whose disabilities are not service-connected is announced by R. E. Arne, assistant national director of war service, at the Pacific branch office at San Francisco. The liberalization of policy of home service also applies to the families of veterans.

If a motorist wants to figure how many feet he is traveling per second all he has to do, says Director of Finance Roland Vandegrift, is a bit of mental calculation with his speedometer. "Multiply the speed you are traveling by one and one-half," Vandegrift said, "and you have the number of feet you are traveling per second."

Spanish orange growers are concerned over competition California oranges are giving them in the London market. It is computed that roughly 60,000,000 cases of oranges are shipped annually to England from California. A large staff has been sent from Spain to England and praise the merits of Spanish fruit and attempt to penetrate the British market.

It is unlawful for motor vehicles to pass on the right side of other vehicles except within the corporate limits of a city, E. Raymond Cato, chief of the California Highway Patrol, reminds motorists. He said several wrecks occurred recently because motorists misinterpreted a new section of the law permitting passing to the right under certain conditions.

An apportionment of $2,801,124 in state gasoline taxes has been made to the counties by State Controller Riley. The State Highway Division's share of the gas tax collected for the first quarter of 1932 totaled $5,602,249, the division being 1 cent to the counties and 2 cents to the state. Riley said the apportionment for the quarter was approximately $200,000 less than for the same period in 1931.

Having expended more than $100,000 in unemployment relief since October, the registration office of the Citizens' Employment Council of Stockton ended its work recently. Funds have been exhausted and need for relief work has greatly diminished, says W. H. Falconbury, president of the council. Mrs. E. C. Stewart, president of the Stockton chapter of the American Red Cross, donated her full time for six months to the office.

Delano's "labor war," arising from outside farm labor being given preference to local labor, and because of a one-quarter reduction in wages, has been settled amicably, Enrique Bravo, Mexican Consul for the San Joaquin Valley, reported following a conference with Mayor Stradley of Delano. Bravo said the trouble arose when 600 Mexican families, led by a Delano man, established a boycott of Japanese stores because Japanese farmers adopted a wage scale of 15 cents per hour, 5 cents below the usual 20-cent wage. Approximately 95 per cent of the stores' patronage was from Mexicans, Bravo said.

Company A, 159th Infantry, Oakland National Guard unit, was presented with the War Department plaque, awarded annually to the National Guard unit which qualifies the greatest number of marksmen.

Uncle Sam gained twenty-seven new citizens at Martinez recently, when that number successfully passed citizenship examinations held in Superior Judge H. V. Alvarado's court. A class of thirty-seven appeared in court for the examinations, but ten were unsuccessful.

"Win 'em with kindness" will be the motto of the Motor Vehicle Department clerks who handle the 1932 influx of nonresident motorists into California. Registrar Russell Bevans said that these clerks are being given a special course of training in using tact before they are sent to the checking stations at the Oregon, Nevada and Arizona border lines.

Following an appeal by Representative Swing of California to John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, 460,000 sacks of flour left Washington recently for distribution among the California Indian reservations. The shipment, it is understood, will be distributed as follows: 250,000 sacks through Sacramento, 100,000 sacks to the mission Indians of Southern California, 50,000 sacks to the Yuma Indians and 60,000 sacks to the Hopla Indians of Northern California.

Encouraging industrial signs were heightened with release of a report by State Labor Commissioner Reardon showing a decrease in March employment this year of only 1.1 per cent from February for 1231 representative establishments in all parts of the state. This is the smallest percentage in this respect in recent years and is considered a heartening sign. The total pay roll decrease for the month was only one-tenth of 1 per cent and average weekly earnings went up 1.1 per cent. Several lines showed employment increases, led by knit goods.

Typhoid fever deaths in California last year reached the lowest rate in the history of the state, it was shown by statistics released recently by the State Department of Public Health. The disease claimed ninety-seven persons in 1931, a death rate of 1.6 per 100,000 of population, as compared to ninety-eight deaths in 1930. In all 711 cases of typhoid were reported last year as against 743 in 1930. The typhoid death rate in California was 34.9 per 100,000 in 1906, in which year the deaths totaled 656. Since that year, however, the death rate has been decreasing yearly. Only six states have a lower death rate than California.

With a $10,000 appropriation available from the state, agricultural commissioners of the San Joaquin Valley and Southern California, meeting at the Courthouse in Bakersfield, recently planned a campaign to eradicate the latest weed pest from California, the camel's thorn, curse of the desert, which has gained a foothold in Kern county as well as seven others in California, according to L. A. Burch, Agricultural Commissioner at Bakersfield. The heaviest infestation of camel's thorn is in Kern, Merced and Imperial counties. Because of the fact that the pest has not yet spread throughout the state, and its acreage is still comparatively small, it is believed that it can be eradicated, rather than controlled. The campaign will result in a concentration on the five counties with the least infestation and their clean-up. Then the campaign will swing intensively to the other three counties.

All Californians are urged in a proclamation issued by Governor Rolph to lend their support to the California State Fair to be held in Sacramento September 3 to 10. "This seventy-eighth exhibit, now in the making, promises to have the greatest horse show in its history," the Governor stated. "Thoroughbreds from all over the nation and trick performers, entrants in the Tenth Olympiad in Los Angeles, will be participants in Sacramento. California this year will join with many of our sister states in paying tribute to the father of our country, and the Washington Bicentennial, now being observed throughout the United States will be the theme of the exposition. Each year the California State Fair is achieving greater glory. Its aims have expanded in scope and last year its exhibits surpassed, both in number and in quality, those of 1930. I look forward to the 1932 State Fair and believe it will eclipse the triumph of last year."

The proposal to shift the cost of elementary and high schools from the counties to the state would place an additional burden of at least $44,352,000 a year on to the state taxpayers, State Director of Finance Vandegrift announced recently. State farm organizations, the California Real Estate Association and other agencies are sponsoring an initiative constitutional amendment to authorize the transfer, the needed revenues to be collected by personal income and selected sales taxes. Vandegrift said an analysis by his department of the cost of the plan showed it would increase state expenses by $44,352,000 a year or $88,704,000 a biennium, provided school attendance remained stationary. "However," he said, "if the elementary and high school attendance during the next two years increases 3 per cent and 7.6 per cent, respectively, the added cost to the state will be $99,823,000 for the biennium. I doubt that the income and sales tax will raise enough money to meet the bill." Vandegrift declared the estimate of attendance increases is conservative.

San Diego county's 1932 celery crop sold for nearly $750,000. In all, 1400 cars were required to ship to Canadian and eastern markets.

For the purpose of providing the maximum fire and sanitary protection for inmates of jails, hospitals and other public institutions, Mrs. Rhea Crawford Spilva, director of the State Department of Social Welfare, has notified county supervisors their plans for all such establishments must be approved by her department before construction work begins.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

SO MANY housewives like to serve a meat loaf, because the man of the home can make no reasonable excuse for not wishing to carve it.

Ham Loaf.—Take two pounds of smoked ham, one and three-fourths pounds of lean fresh pork, one green pepper and one-half an onion, all chopped fine. Mix with one cupful of bread crumbs, two beaten eggs, one cupful of milk and seasoning of salt and pepper. Make a loaf. Place in a pan, cover with cracker crumbs which have been moistened with milk. Bake in a moderate oven one and one-half hours. Serve with a tomato or mushroom sauce.

Chicken Croquettes.—Make one cupful of white sauce using chicken stock and mix, add two cupfuls of chopped chicken, one-half teaspoonful of salt, the same of celery salt and onion salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of paprika. Let it cool and form into cone-shaped croquettes. Roll in slightly beaten egg to which two tablespoonfuls of water has been added. Then roll in bread crumbs. Set away to chill. Fry in hot fat and serve with mushroom sauce.

Perfect Pancakes.—Beat two eggs, yolks and whites separately, add one tablespoonful of sugar, one and one-half cupfuls of rich sour milk, two and one-fourth cupfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and three-fourths teaspoonful of soda. Beat the egg yolks, add the sugar, beat until dissolved, add sour milk to which the soda has been added. Sift flour with salt and baking powder and add to the sour milk, fold in the stiffly beaten whites and bake on a hot greased griddle. If the milk is not rich add two tablespoonfuls of shortening.

Nowadays there are so many good commercial salad dressings that are about as reasonable in price as the good materials would cost, it is economy for the busy housewife to keep a bottle or two on hand. Add a bit of chopped pickle, capers, onion and a little vinegar or lemon juice and one has a very good fish sauce made very quickly.

CHILDREN'S STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

BUSTER BEAR had had no luck at all in either his fishing or his wishing. He rather felt that this was a contrary day, which means a day in which everything goes just the wrong way. It didn't occur to him that the contrariness was in him, which it was. If he hadn't persisted in keeping on fishing when it was perfectly clear that there were no fish in the little pools of the Laughing Brook, he might have found something else to eat and had a pleasant, comfortable morning instead of one disappointment after another which had neither filled his stomach nor improved his temper. So he had stopped to rest and grumble to his heart's content.

Right into the midst of his grumbling had broken angry screams, and he had looked up to see King Eagle trying to make Plunger the Fish Hawk give up a big, fat fish. Of course, they were up in the air, and they were almost over Buster's head. He forgot his own troubles and disappointments in the excitement of watching Plunger try to get away from King Eagle. At first he had hoped that Plunger would get away from King Eagle. Then as he saw how nearly over him they were he wished that Plunger would drop that fish. If he should drop that fish perhaps, he, Buster, might dine on fish after all. And such a fish as it was! The very sight of it was enough to make Buster's mouth water. And just then Buster's wish came true. You know wishes do come true once in a while. Buster's did then. He saw King Eagle rush at Plunger and heard him scream something in a very angry sounding voice. And right then Plunger let go of that fish. It surprised Buster so to have his wish come true that he just stared open-mouthed at that shining silver thing dropping out of the sky straight toward him. He saw King Eagle suddenly turn in the air and shoot down after the fish. He saw Mrs. Plunger sweep across in front of King Eagle and bother him for just an instant. It was just enough to prevent King Eagle catching that fish before it reached the ground.

Open-eyed and open-mouthed Buster stared up at the strange thing happening right above him. He was so interested that his wits almost forgot to

Hopes to Find "Pig-Headed" Indians

A LONE trek through the hostile jungles of northernmost Brazil's pristine "Half World," in search of new light on the savage tribes infesting the dark recesses of that most inaccessible of territories, has been begun by Desmond Holdridge, twenty-four-year-old leader of the Brooklyn Museum's Brazil expedition, according to a cablegram received by Lee Trenholm, the expedition's New York manager.

"Leaving for Catrimany" was the brief text of the message, dispatched from Manaus, an inland metropolis at the confluence of the Negro and the Amazon, 1,000 miles from the Atlantic. It laconically imparted the information that Holdridge, accompanied by a native mechanic and Emerson Smith, expedition motion picture cameraman, had set out from Manaus in their 32-foot cabin cruiser Rio-Mar on a 600-mile water journey up the Negro and Branco rivers to the head of navigation of the Rio Catrimany.

At this point, Holdridge has long planned to plunge westward alone into the enveloping silence of the unexplored and deadly "Meio Mundo" or Half World. Somewhere within the fastness he hopes to locate "pig-headed" Indians and to establish definitely that their porcine ceremonial masks rather than actually misshapen craniums have been responsible for reports of their existence.

It will be about four months before Holdridge is to emerge 300 to 400 miles to the west on the Venezuelan side of the Parima mountains and descends the Orinoco watershed to keep a rendezvous with Smith and the Rio-Mar where the River Turuaca, tributary of the Amazon, meets the Cassiquiare canal, an anomaly of nature connecting the headwaters of South America's two mightiest streams. In June, Smith is to start from Manaus for the meeting place, going via the Negro and Sapo rivers.

Sharing with Col. P. H. Fawcett, lost British explorer, the belief that the fastest progress through the jungle can be made with a small party and light equipment, Holdridge is stripping his outfit and personnel to an irreducible minimum for his arduous journey through the Meio Mundo. Anti-venom, medicines, sidearms, notebooks, a hand movie camera and trinkets to propitiate the natives are the bulk of his impedimenta.

For sustenance, he will depend on the rivers, the forest and friendly Indians. Enlisting two native aides, he intends making his way by dug-out along the waterways whenever feasible or over rough trails hewn from the wilderness by machete when river travel becomes unsafe or impracticable. Among the hidden Indian villages which dot the region days are to be spent taking photographs, assembling data and seeking news of unreported tribes.

On the cruise from Manaus to as far as the Rio-Mar's 3-foot draught permits them to ascend the Catrimany, Holdridge and Smith were to make a detailed motion picture record of the extraordinary native and animal life to be found on every hand, seeking especially a scientifically complete camera study of a rare bird popularly known as the "Cock of the Rocks."

work. That fish was dropping right straight at him, yet he made no move to get out of the way. You see, he was so interested in watching King Eagle and wondering if he would be able to catch that fish that until it was too late he didn't once think of what might happen to him if King Eagle didn't catch that fish. He had just taken it for granted that King Eagle would catch it. When he saw that King Eagle wasn't going to he suddenly realized that while he wanted that fish very much indeed he didn't want it in just the way he was likely to get it. He started to jump to one side, but he was not quick enough. Slap! That big, fat fish, dropped from high up in the air, had hit Buster full in the face. In fact, it almost knocked him over. For just one minute he couldn't see anything. He heard the swish and rustle of King Eagle's great wings as he spread them and brought himself up short to keep from striking Buster Bear, for King Eagle knew better than to run the risk of a blow from one of Buster's great paws.

When Buster got his wits together and could see straight he saw that the fish had fallen a little to one side after hitting him, and he also saw that King Eagle was hovering over it and

Its Glory Departed

Mosul has a little-known link with western vocabularies, says an article in a Boston paper. When the luxury markets of Europe began to draw on the resources of the East, Mosul quickly earned fame through a special cambric of finest lamb's wool, which the French christened Moussoul laine. It is the modern muslin, and for centuries the town rivaled Bagdad as a great eastern trade depot; but today it is in the doldrums.

A POET'S BIRTHDAY

When Edwin Markham, America's beloved dean of poets, spoke to some eight million "pupils" of the American School of the Air last month on "What is Poetry?" and asked them to send him original poems, he started something which has proved surprising in its magnitude.

The announcer of the broadcast confided to the children and other listeners that Mr. Markham would be 80 years old on April 23, and suggested that all send birthday letters to the school's headquarters at the Columbia Broadcasting System in New York City. And a deluge of letters and poems has been rolling in ever since, comprising a birthday tribute such as has never been accorded any other person.

The poems sent in range from the crudest efforts of first grade pupils to really meritorious productions by older children and grown-ups. Collectively they show that American children are not lacking in the poetic impulse nor in their appreciation of the venerable author of "The Man With the Hoe."

It is especially appropriate that children should have such an important part in Mr. Markham's birthday observance, for he has long been an ardent champion of childhood, and has made notable contributions to the movement for the elimination of child labor.

SAVAGES IN COLLEGE

Every now and then incidents occur which make one question the idea that education is a civilizing influence on some people. Such an incident was reported recently from the University of Missouri, in which a bunch of savages masquerading as college men kidnaped a young woman who had been selected as queen of a university dance and kept her away from the function so that she might not enjoy the honor for which she had been chosen. As a result of this outrageous action, a gun fight among rival student groups took place, in which several were wounded, some perhaps fatally.

If this were an isolated case it might be passed over as unimportant, but unfortunately manifestations of the savage spirit among some college students are by no means rare. Tortures resulting in serious injuries, and even death, in connection with hazing ceremonies have been somewhat frequent. Wanton destruction of public and private property by students upon one pretext or another is not uncommon. Less violent, but none the less reprehensible, is the cruel snobbery from which poor but worthy students often suffer at the hands of members of reputedly elite fraternities. Even college football, which is supposed to be conducted on a high plane of sportsmanship, is sometimes marred by slugging and other brutalities for which there is not the slightest excuse.

While it is true that manifestations of the savage spirit enumerated in the foregoing are somewhat exceptional, they exist to an extent sufficient to demonstrate that education alone will not transform a ruffian into a gentleman.

LYNCHINGS IN 1931

Preliminary reports indicate that only thirteen persons were lynched in the United States in 1931, as compared with thirty in 1930, and ten in 1929. The record of last year rather upsets the theory expressed by some a year ago to the effect that the marked increase in lynchings in 1930 was in some way due to the depression.

Georgia, with a record of more lynchings than any other states during the last fifty years, was entirely free from mob violence last year. States which had no lynchings since 1889 are Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, and New Jersey. Also there have been none in the District of Columbia. It is rather odd that the entire New England group has been immune from lynch law for such a long period.

Lynchings in the United States reached their most frightful total in 1892, when no less than 255 persons—100 whites and 155 negroes—met death at the hands of mobs.

According to the best available records, 4,330 persons have been lynched since 1885. It is likely that several hundred of these victims were innocent of the crimes for which they were killed. This is a ghastly record, but it is encouraging to note a marked decrease in mob crimes in recent years.

USE AMERICAN SHIPS

The trouble with our shipping business, particularly as concerns passenger transportation, is that a surprisingly small percentage of travelers patronize American ships. While Englishmen, Frenchmen and Germans loyally travel on vessels flying their own national flags, Americans do not.

An appeal for the patronage of American ships by Americans, especially women, was recently made by Miss Ruth Victory, an executive of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, who pointed out that women constitute the large proportion of passengers on ocean liners. She said:

"Business and professional women and others who go abroad should recognize the advantageous impression they can create and the confidence they can inspire in foreign associates by traveling on ships flying the Stars and Stripes. American supremacy on the seas means American supremacy in business, and the patronage of American women will be an invaluable asset."

AN UNSOUND PLAN

It has been suggested that the motorists of the state be made to pay the lion's share of a twenty-five million dollar unemployment relief fund in California, by raising the gasoline tax rate one cent, by levying a motor tax sale, by permitting counties to levy a motor tax, and by urging the Federal government to tax automobiles or gasoline, or both.

It is to be feared that many otherwise steady persons will be lead astray by the cause for which the money would be used. Unemployment relief is a splendid thing, and a thing that is close to all of us. It is something that must be done. But to do it entirely or largely at the expense of motorists, as a class, would be as reprehensible as doing it at the expense of users of candy, or electricity, or airplanes, or golf balls.

A state relief fund should be made up, so far as possible, at the expense of every citizen and taxpayer. It should certainly not be made up by taxation against a certain class of citizens.

As the Baltimore Sun recently said: "Gas and motor-car taxes cannot be carried much further without showing diminishing returns, and if the rage for boosting them continues at the present rate, the best thing that could happen would be a revolt which would compel cessation."

A forty-eight letter alphabet is proposed, but we're against it. It's hard enough to keep the twenty-six letters we now have in their proper places.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

TROOP NO. 149

Chester M. Smith, S. M.

The boys of Troop 149 have found little time for games of late, as test passing and preparation for the huge Parents' night have far exceeded the thought for games. The Parents' night will be held in the City Hall, on June 10, at which time all parents and our many friends are expected to be present. There will be demonstrations, drills and exhibitions of Scoutcraft. There will also be a Court of Honor held that night, a feat never before displayed by a Scout troop in this city. Further details will follow in a later edition of this paper.

While this sheet comes off the press the Junior officers will be on their way to camp, the remainder of the troop to leave Saturday morning. This will mark the first real trip of the season, being from Friday afternoon until Monday afternoon. The entire troop will participate in this outing.

It is planned that with the close of May this trip will carry its activities on among the hills in back of our city.

TROOP NO. 148

A. R. Brauns, S. M.

Sixteen members of Troop 148 left on an over-night camping trip to Camp Snipe last Saturday. Upon arriving at the camp the boys set about building a lean-to for the purpose of keeping dry in case of rain, after which supper and a snipe hunt was enjoyed. The camp fire was then started, at which time songs and yells were in order. Then the Scout benediction, and so to bed.

Yes, it rained that night, and both blankets and boys were very wet the next morning. The boys, losing their spirit, returned home early Sunday morning to the Scoutmaster's home—and thanks to Mrs. Brauns for the wonderful feed of hot cakes. The remainder of the day was spent in the hills back of Daly City. The officers in attendance on this trip were Mr. A. R. Brauns and Mr. Ernest R. Bradford of Cub Pack 34.

Bob Irons and Cleon Abbott are again joining the Scouts. Cleon is to serve as an assistant Scoutmaster.

WEEK OF OPERATIC HITS AT THE CURRAN THEATRE

Catalina's dramatic opera, "La Wally", will open the season at the Curran Theatre on Monday evening, May 2, given by the Pacific Opera Company, under direction of Arturo

Casiglia. "La Wally" has been produced in America only at the Metropolitan, first in 1909, under the baton of Toscanini, Catalina's closet friend, and later at the same opera house, with Robert Moranzoni directing. The title role in the forthcoming production will be sung by Mme. Iva Vanni, a California dramatic soprano, who received her musical education in Italy, where she sang for several seasons before returning to San Francisco.

Henry Thompson, the popular English tenor, will sing the difficult role of "Hagenbach." The role of Walter will be sung by Rudolphine Radil, who sang this same part at the Teatro Donizetti, in Bergamo, Italy. The cast also includes Matteo Dragoni, Marsden Argall, Edith Mackie, and Evristo Albertini.

On Tuesday evening, May 3, Livia Marracci, a beautiful San Francisco girl, recently returned from Italy, will make her operatic debut in San Francisco as Violetta in "La Traviata." Miss Marracci began her career in Italy as a motion picture actress, and sang with Giovanni Martinelli, the famous tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, in a condensed screen production of two Verdi operas, "Il Trovatore" and "Ernani."

On Wednesday evening, May 4, a Japanese soprano, Mme. Sugi Machi, will make her American debut in opera with Casiglia, singing the appealing role of "Madame Butterfly," in Puccini's popular masterpiece. Mme. Machi was discovered in Los Angeles by Gaetano Merola, director of the San Francisco Opera Association, and he was so intrigued by her charm and the beauty of her voice that he recommended her to Casiglia, and it is Maestro Merola who coached her for the part in which she will make her debut.

On Thursday evening "La Traviata" will be repeated, and on Friday the ever-popular "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" will be sung. At the Saturday matinee, "Madame Butterfly" will be repeated, and on Saturday night the season will close with a repetition of "La Wally."

Mr. and Mrs. George Felsch and son George, Jr., and daughter June, spent Saturday and Sunday visiting at the home of Mrs. Felsch's brother in Oakland. While there they greatly enjoyed the Relief Society work and flower exhibit which the local organization participated in, receiving two first prizes, three second prizes, and three honor mentions. They also greatly enjoyed the conference sessions held on Sunday, when Mr. B. H. Roberts, of Salt Lake City, Utah, was the principal speaker.

Recently Mrs. Lorraine Wall was a guest of honor at a luncheon and surprise baby shower given by Mrs. Nicholas Vlasoff at her home in the Richmond district. The dining room was artistically decorated for the occasion, the table, flowers, place cards, etc., being carried out in a color scheme of pink and orchid. Those attending were Mesdames Dorothy Donovan, of Palo Alto, L. Stock, of San Francisco, Lorraine Wall and Muriel Vlasoff, of San Francisco; Misses Alice Ryan and Frances Smith, of San Francisco, Marge and Tess O'Connor, of Daly City. Mrs. Wall was the recipient of many beautiful gifts.

Mrs. M. Pechenino, of Brunswick street, entertained a few of her friends last Friday night at a farewell party for Mrs. M. Boyle, president of the General Pershing P. T. A., prior

Why Not The Truth?

The attempt to put over the SHARKEY OIL CONTROL bill on the people of California and establish a monopoly under control of the major oil corporations should be resented by every voter of the state. From the start it has been a campaign to bunk the public.

The true sponsors of the bill, the major oil corporations, are afraid to come out in the open and fight for their own measure. They are supplying the money but are using dummies to hide their activities.

So-called "Independents," servants and dependents of the major oil corporations, have been called into action. One of these groups, widely advertised as favoring the bill, is headed by the president of one of the major oil corporations, but his name was carefully eliminated from the list of supporters of the SHARKEY measure.

It was to be expected that they would make one big blunder, and they have.

The Beans Have Been Spilled

To find sponsors for their measure the major oil corporations went to Texas and got the Governor, former president of the Humble Oil Company, a major oil corporation subsidiary in that state, to tell the people of California how they should vote. Announcement was made by radio on the hour of a major oil corporation of California, and time for the speech was on the hour of a major oil corporation of New York. How is that for a hook-up? Alfalfa Bill Murray of Oklahoma was in the same hook-up! Is it any wonder that the voters of California should resent this impudent interference in their affairs?

In keeping with their plan of campaign to mislead the public about this measure, the major oil corporations attempted to get it on the ballot as "OIL CONSERVATION." The State Court of Appeals soon upset that bunk and gave the measure its proper label of "OIL CONTROL," and that's what it is, with the control of the industry handed over to the major corporations.

There is No Overproduction of Oil in California!

There is not a drop of oil being wasted in California today. The same major oil corporations which are trying to put over the SHARKEY bill in California and shouting about "overproduction," are importing peon-produced oil, duty free, into the United States from Venezuela and Columbia at a rate exceeding by 100,000 barrels daily the entire production from the California fields, and have stolen the market away from California produced oil on the Atlantic seaboard.

Why Not The Truth? The sole purpose of the SHARKEY OIL CONTROL is to kill off independent competition, establish a monopoly and raise the price of gasoline to 25 cents per gallon or more.

WARNING! STOP, LOOK, LISTEN!
Great sums of money are now being spent, and far greater sums will be spent by the Major Oil Corporations in every conceivable form of propaganda before election day in the attempt to put over the SHARKEY bill. Millions for monopoly! Fat salaried executives do not

The best guess is that the people of California will not be fooled no matter how great the flood of paid advertising, paid speakers, radio and propaganda! —This statement with facts: that statistics from the Census Department shows that the average number in an American family is four and one-fifth. We wonder if the one-fifth is father.

Another statement we'll back up is: that if we do the repair work on your car that it won't be done like a schoolboy washes his ears—we'll make a thorough job of it; and when we start on your job we don't waste our time looking for a wrench and then try to find a nut to fit the wrench.

Joe Barry brushed a hand across suddenly weary eyes. There was nothing he could say. Nothing that he could explain, except to hide behind the mask of his injury. At last he was alone, Uncle Dan gone and the fussy car porter finally assured that there was nothing more he could do. Alone, where he could think—

But there was only one thought. This was the end. Fullhouse must know that there was a reward on his head. By now, he must be at the little town's police headquarters, telling his story. The old hate began to boil in his brain, the hate which he had known in his cell at 240 Center street, in the Tombs, in the countless cages. Suddenly, he strove to rise; but the bolts of pain drove like lightning through his head; dizzy, exhausted, he dropped to his bunk again.

When Joe awoke, it was dark, and the slow-moving train was rocking along its cradlelike journey to a new town. He half rose, and stared up and down the aisle. But there were no watching men at the doors. No one, then, had come to the train to claim him. Either legal technicalities of which Joe knew nothing had offered a temporary bar, or more important, Fullhouse had chosen not to remember! A swift picture came to him, of a scene in the homicide bureau, with Louie Bertolini standing smugly at one side, Fullhouse at the table, hands behind his flat hips, his narrow shoulders rounded, his flaccid, emotionless features turned toward Joe with the laconic question:

"How did I know what you wanted him to look like?"

For the first time, Joe Barry saw in that statement in the homicide bureau a possibility of friendship. Fullhouse might have meant it when he had said:

"How did I know what you wanted him to look like?"

A few hours should tell now. Certainly if the news had traveled, even if there had been the necessity for confirmatory telegrams to New York, there would be an officer awaiting the arrival of the show train in the next town. An hour later, Joe Barry heard the grinding of brake shoes and stiffened himself for the agony of waiting, minute upon minute. In that hour certain things had come to him, grim plans for the immediate future if the worst had happened, an equally desperate alternative, accomplished with less haste if there were a respite. In either event, he knew, his happiness, his hope, was gone.

After a time he rose weakly and dressed. His head pounded with trip-hammer blows; his surroundings floated at times. The parade was coming back to the lot when at last he reached the circus grounds. A flying figure leaped from her horse and ran to him; Joe caught her hungrily. At last:

"Sue, I've got to have a serious talk with you."

"Of course, you have!" she pouted. Then with a laugh: "Goodness, Joe, our talk can wait."

"I didn't mean today," the man said. "It isn't something that we can settle in a short time. Tonight, after the show."

"Maybe," she said and patted his cheek. "Now, you do as I tell you. You go and rest until time to make up. That is, if you really insist on going into the ring."

Joe rested only a short time. Soon he was up and walking around again, in answer to the restlessness of him, the waiting, hour upon hour of agony; the agony of a gamble. But it was not a gamble; either way, Sue must soon or later know. The experience of yesterday had taught him the futility of hope; today, or a year from now, or ten years, it would be the same, always the threat, always the danger, the restiveness, the gnawing fear that would never cease. Beyond all this was the knowledge that Sue Dayton loved him; in that realization lay finality. As long as he could worship her, with never a thought beyond that worship, as long as he could love her and never let her know, just that long had his life possessed fullness, for no one could rob him of that. There had been a certain satisfaction in it, the feeling that she was his friend and that he loved her, loved her enough to seal his heart against ever committing the crime of telling her. But now that was done. He knew that, by loving her, he had hurt her. Today, roughly, from the lips of some one else, or tonight, from his own faltering ones, she must learn the truth, before he went away forever. Dully he turned his steps to the treasury wagon.

"I guess I'll draw out a little money," he said. Joe had allowed his wages to "ride the wagon," except for necessities.

The treasurer counted out a hundred dollars in accordance with Joe's signed withdrawal slip.

The matinee came, and the mockery of the act of the sawdust ring; for the first time, the beloved Iorio verged now and then into the faintest of discords. Then the easy chair again, the ministrations of Sue, the bluff sympathy of Uncle Dan—and the waiting, the watching, the fear at the sight of every one who rounded the edge of the tent. But no one came who did not smile; at last it was night.

Loading activities were on their way now. Joe stumbled into the dressing tent and to the duties of making up, long ahead of time. At last, attired for the ring, he stepped forth. Slowly he moved forward, half blind from the pain of his aching head, picking his way—

He halted! His hands raised, clutching at his side. From over there in the darkness, some one was calling, half voice, half whisper:

"Joe! Joe Barry!"

A dim form showed vaguely at the shadowy side of a bulky wagon. Once more the voice:

"Joe! Duck in here—quick, before some one sees you!"

The man in clown-white sagged, straightening from sheer force of will. He swerved into the darkness and stumbled forward.

"Hello, Fullhouse," he said at last.

CHAPTER X

Fullhouse did not answer in words. He only caught the man by the arm and led him farther into the shadows.

"Listen, keed," he asked at last.

"You know why I followed this show on here, don't you?"

Joe shook his head.

"I've been waiting for something to happen all day. I thought you'd set the police on me."

"Who, me? Me tip the bulls? Have a heart. Anyway," said Fullhouse, "they don't need no tippin'."

"Then they're already on my trail?"

"Do you think I'd be here if they wasn't? Listen, keed," Fullhouse grasped his arm again. "You ain't goin' to stick here and let 'em slough you? Where's your bean? They'll crank the Stingin' Lizzie if they connect with you."

Joe Barry's head rolled. "You said the police knew. How did you find out?"

"They come to Louie's."

"When?"

"Night before last."

"Then why haven't they arrested me?"

"How do I know?" Fullhouse asked somewhat testily. "Don't ask me why they ain't here. I just know what I know. I thought enough of you to try to tip you. You never done nothin' to me, did you?"

"No."

"I've always felt I done you a dirty rap at that bureau. Why didn't you tip a guy? I didn't know what you wanted that bozo to look like."

Joe rubbed his dry lips.

"That's over anyway, Fullhouse," he said at last. "You were telling me they came to Louie's."

"Yeh, about eleven o'clock night before last; Chuvien and Maxwell. I was gettin' ready to blow; me'n Louie'd just settled up. That's phooey, you know; I'm out. I quit Louie. They walked in just as I was walkin' out. I'd just told Louie what I thought of him. I don't have to work for no guy; I can get all the jobs I want without workin' for no slave driver. I worked for one guy four years; take you right to his joint. Guy named Jamison, he's a big shot in the oil business; take me back any time I want to work for him. But I don't need to work for nobody. I got a racket of my own."

"The way I figured, Chuvien and Maxwell don't miss many bets. They usually get what they're after. So when they blow into Louie's on your trail, I stalled around. Then I thinks to myself, why shouldn't I blow out and see if you was what they said you was. So out I come. I got my own bus," said Fullhouse proudly. "I go where I please."

"What did they say when they came to Louie's?"

"Well, first they blow in and begin to stall around. I see they're on the make the minute they bulge the joint. So I sticks. Finally Pete asks about the radio."

The word shot a chill through Joe. This was confirmation.

Woman Suffrage in 1797

Why has it never been imagined that the right of election should be extended to women? Why? but because by the law of nations and perhaps also by the law of nature, that sex is dependent on ours; and because, therefore, their voice would be governed by the relation in which they stand in society. Therefore it is, sir, that with the exception of companies in which right of voting merely affects property, it has never been in the contemplation of the most absurd theorists to extend the elective franchise to the other sex.—Charles James Fox in Speech on Parliamentary Reform, 1797.

Caterpillar's Ears

Caterpillars have shown the ability to hear. Certain sounds result in sudden movements of the body. But where are their ears? Doctor Allard's experiments showed that the caterpillar's sense of hearing is aided by hairs that absorb sound.

To prove this, experimenters coated the hairs with shellac or weighted them with water or flour or even singed them off. Then, when noises were made, the caterpillar did not respond. The fact that its hairs had been deadened made it deaf.

ARBOR DAY-1932

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE observance of Arbor day varies in the different states of the Union, although the majority of the celebrations are held during the latter part of April or the first part of May. But whatever the date, it has a special significance this year because of two men. For 1932 is the bicentennial of the birth of George Washington, the "Father of His Country," and the centennial of the birth of J. Sterling Morton, the "Father of Arbor Day."

The connection of George Washington with Arbor day celebrations lies in the fact that this year he has been the inspiration for the most extensive tree-planting program ever undertaken in this country. For a part of the general bicentennial celebration program this year has been the project, sponsored by the American Tree association of Washington, D. C., of planting 10,000,000 trees, all dedicated to Washington, a veritable living memorial stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Canadian line to the Mexican border.

In announcing this project at the time that President Coolidge created the Washington bicentennial commission to have charge of the general celebration this year, Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree association, said:

"What more significant and unique method could be employed to manifest the affection which American feels for Washington? Washington himself must have loved trees, for his diary contains repeated references to their value and care; and he chose a spot for his home where their beauty is unexcelled. Along the shaded path that leads to his final resting place, two columns of trim, straight larches stand like sentinels, his constant companions, along with those thousands of Americans who come to pay him reverence during the daylight hours."

"He must have loved the regal beauty of a tree. In the symbolism of a tree can Washington be remembered pre-eminently. Deep-rooted in the ground, a tree is like a man, coming up out of the earth, but lifting its branches to heaven. And as it grows in usefulness, so it grows in beauty. It may outlast the ages, it offers its shade to all alike, and its disinterested ministries succor a thirsty countryside and provide for its physical and esthetic necessities. So a tree bespeaks the spirit of Washington. He was democratic in his services, regal in his leadership, commanding in his principles, while he extended a brotherly hand to a new and independent people struggling for fuller freedom."

Not only have millions of trees already been planted in honor of Washington and registered with the American Tree association by social, civic and patriotic clubs and organizations as well as by individuals, but the bicentennial tree planting idea has now gone around the world.

King Boris III of Bulgaria has joined this great tree planting army in honoring Washington by presenting to Henry W. Shoemaker, the American minister at Sofia, two very rare Balkan varieties of evergreens, one for the legation garden, the other for the American school near Sofia. These trees have been planted by Minister Shoemaker, who is from Pennsylvania, with the help of the legation staff and with I. Kerekoff of the Bulgarian foreign office representing that nation. Mrs. Shoemaker, Mrs. Maynard Barnes, Mrs. Frank Barnes, wives of the secretaries of the legation, and Mr. H. Frey, the king's landscape gardener, aided in the planting of the tree.

Joseph C. Grew, the American ambassador at Istanbul, Turkey, was the first representative of the American government in the foreign land to register on the national roll when he planted three black walnut trees with Eugene M. Hinkle signing the application on the national honor roll as a witness.

Following this came the registration of Fred Morris Dearing, American ambassador at Lima, Peru, who, with Garrett G. Ackerson, Jr., as a witness, planted a tree to mark the bicentennial of the birth of Washington at the Country club

1—J. Sterling Morton, the "Father of Arbor Day," born April 22, 1832.

2—Certificate issued to Joseph C. Grew, American ambassador to Turkey, for three trees planted in Istanbul, Turkey, in honor of George Washington.

3—Mrs. Herbert Hoover helping plant a cedar tree from the Ferry farm, where George Washington spent most of his boyhood days, as President Hoover and other government officials look on. The tree was presented to the President and his wife by the George Washington Tree Guild of Fredericksburg, Va., and was replanted on the White House grounds.

4—A tree, presented by King Boris III of Bulgaria was planted recently in the garden of the American legation at Sofia for the American Tree association with the help of (1) Henry Fry, the king's landscape gardener, (2) Henry Shoemaker, the American minister to Bulgaria, (3) Mrs. Henry Shoemaker and (4) I. Kerekoff of the Bulgarian foreign office, representing the Bulgarian government in the program honoring Washington.

at Lima. Another registration also came from E. E. Libenow, the consular agent at Charnaral, Chile, who planted six English walnuts there.

From Cuba came the registration of Eugene E. Jova, the American consular agent at Sagua La Grande, Pampillo Montero, the director of the board of Sagua Yacht club and secretary of the Rotary club of Sagua la Grande, has also registered on the national honor roll. In the name of the Yacht club itself, Eduardo Radelat, Sr., the president of the club registered two trees, Eduardo Radelat, Jr., registered two more in his own name, Manuel Mill and A. M. Ribas have registered also.

Carlos Cunanan, ranger in the bureau of forestry of the agricultural college at Laguna, P. I., has registered the planting of a seedling he took from the Sierra Madre mountains and brought to Los Banos to acclimatize it. The tree has now been planted in the lowlands and is doing fine, he reports.

Paul E. Nilson of the American school at Talas, Turkey, has registered the planting of eight trees, and at his suggestion and that of Ambassador Grew, the American Tree association has sent the bicentennial tree planting message and its "Forestry Primer" to more than a score of schools in Turkey. These schools include the Constantinople Woman's college, Robert college, the American Academy for Girls, the American Boys' school, and Ihsan Bey, chairman of the council of education at Ankara. Ambassador Grew says there is a keen interest in tree planting of all kinds in Turkey.

There has been more than a hundred registrations from the Boy Scouts in Hawaii, and the library of the department of agriculture, Kyoto Imperial university, Kyoto, Japan, has asked for the bicentennial tree planting posters and printed matter for display.

On April 22, the date on which Nebraska celebrates Arbor day, the fame of one of her distinguished citizens went far beyond the borders of that state. For April 22, 1932, was the centennial of the birth of the "Father of Arbor Day" and a special commemorative stamp issued by the United States government, as well as special observances of the day in many parts of the country, recalled to all Americans their debt of gratitude to J. Sterling Morton.

Morton was born in Adams, Jefferson county, N. Y., on April 22, 1832. When he was two years old his parents moved to Michigan and there he grew up, attending a private school in Monroe and then a Methodist seminary in Albion. In 1850 he entered the University of Michigan and remained there for most of the course, but withdrew in his senior year and was graduated from Union college in his native state in 1854.

In the same year he was married to a Michigan girl and the young couple decided to "go West and grow up with the country." They settled first at Bellevue in the territory of Nebraska, but moved later to what is now Nebraska City, where Morton was a member of the town company, which surveyed and established that town. Adjacent to the townsite he pre-empted a tract of land half a mile square and upon that site he built his home which he called "Arbor Lodge."

Morton was the founder and first editor of the first newspaper, in Nebraska City, the Nebraska City News and was a prominent figure in Nebraska during its territorial days. In 1858 President Buchanan made him secretary of the territory, and upon the resignation of Gov. William A. Richardson he became acting governor. He was, however, more interested in other matters than in politics. He was an original member of the Nebraska territorial board of agriculture and the Territorial Horticultural society. Coming from two heavily-wooded states, New York and Michigan, Morton was struck by the bleakness of the "treeless state," as Nebraska was called at that time.

The result was that at a meeting of the state board of agriculture on January 4, 1872, Morton introduced a resolution setting aside April 10 for tree planting so that Nebraska would be a "treeless state" no longer. More than a million trees were planted that year and several million more during the following years.

In 1885 the Nebraska legislature, wishing to further honor the man who had originated the idea of Arbor day, passed an act changing the date of its observance to April 22, Morton's birthday, and making it a legal holiday in that state. In 1893 Morton entered the cabinet of President Grover Cleveland, as secretary of agriculture, remaining in office until 1897.

By 1895 the Nebraska legislature was able to proclaim to Nebraska's sister states that henceforth she was to be known as the "Tree-Planter State" because this commonwealth, which had once been so markedly destitute of this form of verdure, now had more than 700,000 acres planted in trees.

Arbor day is yet to be observed in a number of states and in all of them two names will figure prominently—George Washington, the "Father of His Country," and J. Sterling Morton, the "Father of Arbor Day." Among those (as this is written) are the following:

Alabama—Proclamation of the governor.
Connecticut—Latter part of April or first part of May by proclamation of governor.
Georgia—First Friday in December.
Hawaii—First Friday in November.
Idaho—April 29, when possible, recommended by governor.

Iowa—Proclamation of the governor.
Kansas—Option of governor.
Kentucky—In fall by proclamation of governor.

Maine—Option of governor in the spring.
Massachusetts—Last Saturday in April, proclamation of governor.
Mississippi—Second Friday in December Proclamation by governor.

Montana—Second Tuesday in May.
Nevada—Proclamation of governor.
New Hampshire—Proclamation of governor, early May.

New York—The law in this state is very elastic in respect to Arbor day and permits of naming the date sectionally so as to take full advantage of climatic conditions in different parts of the state. Hence, there are three Arbor days in New York, one for Long Island, one for "up-state," and one for the northern counties. As a rule, the last Friday in April and the first two Fridays in May are the dates selected.

North Dakota—Option of governor.
Ohio—Proclamation of governor.
Pennsylvania—Proclamation of governor.
Porto Rico—Last Friday in November.
Rhode Island—Second Friday in May.
South Carolina—Third Friday in November.
Virginia—Proclamation of the governor in the spring.

Wisconsin—Proclamation of governor. Usually first Friday in May.
Washington—Proclamation of governor. Usually first Friday in May.
Wyoming—Proclamation of governor. Usually first Friday in May.

HEALTH PROGRAM FOR OUR CHILDREN

The question of whether our children are well nourished or not, especially in these days of lean pocketbooks, is one which will receive considerable attention this May Day, National Child Health Day. In trying to answer it parents and health workers will do well to keep in mind a statement just made by Dr. George T. Palmer, Director Division of Research, American Child Health Association.

"That muscle and fat are the parts of a child's body which show best whether or not he is well nourished, and that a child's bony framework is the principal factor determining his weight, are two important additions to our knowledge of a child's growth and nutrition," says Dr. Palmer. The findings of Dr. Raymond Franzen, his associate in research who studied the problem of physical measures of growth and nutrition, are based on the measurements of 11,000 school children, 7 to 12 years of age, in more than seventy cities of the United States.

The weighing and measuring of children has formed part of many child health programs, and many children have always been found whose weight is greater than or less than that given by the height-weight tables for children of the same age and height. Those who weighed less than the figure given on the tables were thought to be undernourished, but careful examination by the physician showed often that these children were well nourished. And often the opposite proved to be true of children who weighed more than the figure given by the tables for children of their height and age. What, then, did weight for height measure? The findings of Dr. Franzen show that it measures principally the width and depth of the skeleton. In other words, the size of the bony framework is the principal factor in weight. Measurements of young college men and women show similar results.

Next, with instruments especially constructed for the purpose, Dr. Franzen pointed out a way to measure what people had wanted to measure, the child's nutritional status. He showed it was necessary to measure the soft parts, the muscle and fat, and consider these along with the size of the skeleton. It is those soft parts which respond most quickly to food, rest and exercise. They also represent the factor on which physicians agree most closely when they judge whether a child is well nourished or not.

"It is excellent health practice and aids in teaching children good health habits," says Dr. Palmer, "to record each child's weight from time to time to see whether the trend is upward, indicating growth. The child's weight should be compared with his own previous weight record, remembering that his weight is determined largely by his own skeletal build.

"Finally, if a child steadily loses weight he should receive a thorough physical examination, because his record indicates a lack of normal growth. And children whose nutritional condition is in question should be referred to physicians who are best able to decide whether anything is wrong and if so what should be done to right it."

SCIOTS TO WITNESS RODEO AT TANFORAN

Sciots of San Francisco and the peninsula are planning to attend the mammoth rodeo to be given at Tanforan, San Bruno, June 25 and 26, for the benefit of the Sunshine Fund of the Scioto Foundation. San Francisco and San Mateo Pyramids are sponsoring the show.

The country's best riders, best horses, champion rope throwers and bull tossers will compete at the rodeo, "Bob" Anderson, noted rodeo official, has been secured to manage the show, and an outstanding group of rodeo experts have been appointed as officials.

It is planned to hold the event annually. The Scioto Foundation contributes funds to such institutions as the Stanford Convalescent Home, the Bothin Home, Rest Haven in San Deigo, Rock Haven, Long Beach, Sunshine Camp at Clayton, and others. Proceeds from the rodeo will go to the Sunshine Fund of the Foundation, which provides necessities and luxuries not included in the Foundation Fund.

YELLOWSTONE CUT-OFF FETE TENTATIVELY SET

The new road from Lakeview to Burns, in Oregon, practically the last important link of the Yellowstone cut-off project, will be dedicated some time between July 10 and 20, with a

FIESTA DE LAS ROSAS TO BE HELD MAY 21

Eighteen floats, more than have ever been entered this early in fiesta season, have become a part of the grand floral parade of the Santa Clara County Fiesta de las Rosas, which will be held in San Jose on May 21, it was announced following a recent meeting.

This group, a portion of the fifty of sixty which have made up the parade in its seven years of history, are local entries for the most part. Pasadena, Santa Clara, and Willow Glen are entries by California cities. The Phi Chi fraternity of Mountain View and the Bear Photo service of San Francisco are other out-of-town entries.

The balance come from San Jose schools, service clubs, and civic organizations. These include floats from the Science Club of the San Jose high school, public schools group, Olmstead band, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Kiwanis Club, Auditorium roller rink, Clearing House association, Soroptimist Club, Rotary Club, Twenty-three Club, Phi Chi fraternity and San Jose State College.

Every float will be covered entirely with flowers and greens. The theme of the parade this year will be "Colonial Days." This will result in colonial designs and costumes depicting historic events on the greater portion of the floats.

The parade route, which will be five miles long, will accommodate more than a half million people.

public celebration at Burns, reports the California State Automobile Association. A definite date will be set after a conference with Governor James Rolph, Jr., to fix a time when it will be possible for him to attend the dedication.

The Lakeview-Burns section is 91 miles long and is now in the final stages of construction. The Yellowstone cut-off project is a series of connecting roads providing a new direct route between California, Yellowstone National Park, and other tourist and trading areas. The movement was launched four years ago at the instance of the Automobile Association.

LEADER CONFIDENT OF BETTER CONDITIONS

"I consider the present widespread attitude of discouragement as unsound as was the universal false enthusiasm of a few years ago. I am more confident of the future today than in 1928 or 1929."

This sums up an inspiring message by Frederick J. Koster, president of the California State Chamber of Commerce, delivered over the radio last Saturday night on the "Back to Good Times" program of Bank of America. The address, made from San Francisco, was broadcast over Stations KGO and KFI.

"My optimism is founded upon the fact that none has escaped and therefore all are forced by every circumstance to work their way out and to cease looking for any panacea or Messiahs to lead us out of our difficulties," Koster said.

Koster spoke from the point of view of the state-wide organization he represents embracing agriculture, industry, finance and commerce. His message was especially significant following as it did the previous addresses by A. W. Hoch, head of the California State Federation of Labor; Chester H. Rowell, noted journalist; Dr. Rufus von Kleinsmid, president of the University of Southern California; Governor James Rolph, Jr., and A. P. Giannini, head of Bank of America.

"I believe that in this period of so-called depression we have only been digging down to a solid foundation upon which from now on we can slowly and steadily build a true structure," Koster continued.

"Nothing was ever accomplished except by earnest effort based on confidence in the future. Here in California there is every reason for confidence. Our state is sound. It has a great abundance and variety of resources—just as great as existed a few years ago. An intelligent use of these resources, developed under devoted, practical leadership, can not fail to steadily return the people of California to a high state of prosperity.

"Unsound enterprises and institutions are being rapidly liquidated. However, our financial institutions are sound and strong, and I urge upon all a confidence for which I believe there is every justification. Confidence is essential to every achievement and confidence is produced by determination and courage. When money is lost nothing is lost; when character is lost, much is lost; when courage is lost everything is lost.

"I believe there is enough courage, determination and intelligence in our State of California to overcome all of the difficulties that seemingly confront us today."

"When we get to Niagara, dear, let's try to look like we were not newly wed."

"Good, idea, dear. You carry the suitcase, eh?"

Sympathetic Person: "Hello! What is it, my boy? Are you lost?"

Little Boy: "Yes, I am. I might know better than to go out with grandma. She's always losing something."

"That's my home!"

The proudest statement a man can make.

Unlucky Motorist, having just killed the lady's puppy: "Madam, I will replace the animal."

Indignant Owner: "Sir, you flatter yourself."

Inquisitive Child: "Mother, what is a waffle?"

Bright Brother: "It's a non-skid pancake."

When you think of building, think of H. H.

An old Chinaman, delivering laundry in a mining camp, heard a noise and espied a huge brown bear sniffing his tracks in the newly fallen snow.

"Huh!" he gasped. "You linee my tracks, I makee some more."

"Why do they call a sail boat 'She'?"

"Because they make a better showing in the wind."

Father (to youngster, just put to bed): "Now what are you crying for?"

Son: "I want a drink."

Father: "So do I; go to sleep."

"There are two sides to every question," proclaimed the wise man.

"Yes," said the fool, "and there are two sides to a sheet of fly paper, but it makes a difference to the fly which side he chooses."

Eddie: "Does the moon affect the tide?"

Bill: "No, but it affects the untied."
